About a hundred years ago, whenever an operation was performed, the patient would cry out in agony because he felt the surgeon cut his flesh. But now serious operations are performed without pain, and thousands of lives are saved. James Simpson was the first to discover and use the pain-killing power of chloroform. James was born into a poor family. So in his childhood, he not only helped his father on holidays but also helped the village doctor. But he was horrified by the dire suffering of the people who came to the hospital for treatment. He now made it his life's mission to find new inventions that would prevent so much pain. Simpson did many experiments and finally discovered chloroform. Now the patient is not afraid of the operation!

Questions:

- Why did patients cry out in pain in olden days?
- Who invented the pain-killing power?
- Name the painkiller used in surgery nowadays.
- What motivated Simpson to find new invention?
