PREFACE

The ongoing Global Pandemic Covid-19 that has engulfed the entire world has changed every sphere of our life. Education, of course is not an exception. In the absence and disruption of Physical Classroom Teaching, Department of Intermediate Education Telangana has successfully engaged the students and imparted education through TV lessons. In the back drop of the unprecedented situation due to the pandemic TSBIE has reduced the burden of curriculum load by considering only 70% syllabus for class room instruction as well as for the forthcoming Intermediate Examinations. It has also increased the choice of questions in the examination pattern for the convenience of the students.

To cope up with exam fear and stress and to prepare the students for annual exams in such a short span of time , TSBIE has prepared “Basic Learning Material” that serves as a primer for the students to face the examinations confidently. It must be noted here that, the Learning Material is not comprehensive and can never substitute the Textbook. At most it gives guidance as to how the students should include the essential steps in their answers and build upon them. I wish you to utilize the Basic Learning Material after you have thoroughly gone through the Text Book so that it may enable you to reinforce the concepts that you have learnt from the Textbook and Teachers. I appreciate ERTW Team, Subject Experts, who have involved day in and out to come out with the Basic Learning Material in such a short span of time.

I would appreciate the feedback from all the stake holders for enriching the learning material and making it cent percent error free in all aspects.

The material can also be accessed through our website www.tsbie.cgg.gov.in.

Geography, Sources and Pre-History

ESSAY ANSWER QUESTIONS (10 MARKS)

1. Trace the geographical features of Telangana.

Ans. Telangana is situated between  $15^{\circ} 46'$  and  $19^{\circ} 47'$  N latitude and  $77^{\circ} 16'$  and  $81^{\circ} 43'$  E longitudes on the Deccan plateau, which is more than 70 million years old. It has highly eroded flat hillocks. It is a long belt Gneissic Rock formations of peneplains mainly developed over gneissic rocks. It has an average altitude between 300 metres and 600 metres with general slope towards the east. Its north and north eastern side is occupied by the Godavari valley. The rocks, namely granites, metamorphic and sedimentary, distributed throughout the state are rich in minerals.

- Boundaries and extent: Spatially Telangana is land locked state. The state shares its borders with Maharashtra, Chhattisgarh to the North, Karnataka to the west, and Andhra Pradesh to the south, east and north east. Telangana is separated from Andhra Pradesh by the Krishna River, which acts as a geographical divider between the two states. The State comprises of 33 districts covering an area of 1,12,077 sq. km. Telangana state include Hyderabad, Warangal, Mahabubnagar, Karimnagar, Nizamabad and Khammam.
- Topography : Telangana is mostly hilly region. The Sahyadri range of the Western Ghats splits from the Ajanta Range and spreads north-east into Adilabad district. These are called Nirmal Hills in Adilabad district, Rakhee Hill in Karimnagar district, and Kandikal Hills in Warangal and Khammam districts. The hills in Telangana region are famous for Hill Forts like Medak, Bhuvanagiri, Devarakonda, Khammamettu, Warangal forts are of great historic popularity.
- Climate of Telangana: Telangana is semi-arid and has hot and dry climate. Summers start in March and reach peak in May with average temperature of  $42^{\circ}\text{C}$  ( $108^{\circ}\text{F}$ ). The normal rainfall in the state is 906 mm as against the national level of 1083 mm. Most of this rainfall is delivered by the South - West Monsoon (79%) from June to September. A dry, mild winter starts in November and lasts until early February with average temperature in the  $22\text{-}23^{\circ}\text{C}$ .

4. Rivers : Telangana is drained by two major perennial rivers, namely Godavari and Krishna. The Godavari river originates in the Nashik district of Maharashtra and enters Telangana near Basar in the Adilabad district. The tributaries of Godavari are Manjira, Maner, Pranahita and Indravati. The catchment area of the river includes Adilabad, Karimnagar, Nizamabad, Medak, Northern part of Warangal and Khammam. The river Krishna rising in the Western Ghats in Mahabaleshwar in Maharashtra enters Telangana in the Narayanpet district. It is joined by tributaries like Bhima, Dindi, Peddavagu, Halia, Musi and Munneru.

2. Write about the archaeological sources for writing Telangana History.

Ans. Writing about the past is a difficult task. One can never get an exact picture of what actually happened in the past, because the past like the present is complex and analytical way requires a careful study of sources of information. Since the history of Telangana region is dated back to prehistoric times, it requires a careful study of different sources. These can be categorized into (a) Archaeological sources (b) Literary sources.

Archaeological sources: Archaeological sources refer to all the tangible material remains. The earliest available material remains include the prehistoric stone bones, plants and animal fossils, pottery pieces, iron tools etc. Inscriptions, coins, paintings, monuments are also included as part of archaeological sources. These sources

Prehistoric material remains: There are many prehistoric source material available for the study of ancient Telangana. They tell us about life of stone age man, his subsistence patterns, religious beliefs. The technological advancements he made with regard to the usage of stone and metal etc. Plenty of old stone age habitations are found in Asifabad and Lakshettipeta of Adilabad district, at Amrabad in Mahabubnagar (Dist) and at Yeleshwaram, Ramagiri, Narketpalli and Valigonda in Nalgonda district.

Inscriptions: One of the most important and archaeological sources are inscriptions. The study of inscriptions is known as Epigraphy. Inscriptions are mostly dated documents and hence are considered to be authentic. In Telangana, the earliest inscriptions belong to the Satavahana period. The inscriptions of Satavahana's are found at Kotilingala, Naneghat, Nasik, Karle, Bhattiprolu, Amaravati etc.

Coins or Numismatics: Coins are another important source of historical information. The study of coins is known as Numismatics. It includes an analysis of material out of which coins were made. The composition of metals weight of coins, techniques of manufacture and the content on the coins. The last great ruler of Satavahana dynasty, Yajnasri Satakarni issued coins with symbol of a ship. Similarly Chalukyas, Kakatiyas, Qutubshahis and Asafjahi dynasties issued different type of coins.

Monuments: The next important archaeological sources are monuments. These include both religious and secular constructions. Royal palaces, forts, memorial buildings comes under secular category. Warangal, Golkonda, Medak, Elgandal, Bhuvanagiri forts buildings of Samsthanas of Domakonda, Gadwal, Wanaparthi and Kollapur, Charminar, Arts College building of Osmania University. Osmania General Hospital, Assembly building stand as some prominent structures of this secular category in Telangana.

Paintings: The dynasties ruled Telangana region also patronized the art of painting. The best example of Satavahana paintings are found at Ajanta cave number nine and ten are classical examples of their contribution. The Kakatiyas also contributed for the growth of painting. The paintings of their period are seen in Tripurantakam. Pillalamarri and Nagulapadu. During the times of Qutubshahi's and Asafjahi's painting skill is very well developed as remarkable feature of Deccan.

SHORT ANSWER QUESTIONS (5 MARKS)

1. Write about the Rivers of Telangana.

Ans. Telangana is drained by two major perennial rivers, namely Godavari and Krishna. The Godavari river originates in the Nashik district of Maharashtra and enters Telangana near Basar in the Adilabad district. The tributaries of Godavari are Manjira, Maner, Pranahita and Indravati. The catchment-area of the river includes Adilabad, Karimnagar, Nizamabad, Medak, Northern part of Warangal and Khammam. The river Krishna rising in the Western Ghats in Mahabaleshwar in Maharashtra enters Telangana in the Narayanpet district. It is joined by tributaries like Bhima, Dindi, Peddavagu, Halia, Musi and Munneru. The catchment area of the river lies in Mahabubnagar, Rangareddy, Nalgonda and south western parts of Warangal and Khammam districts. Despite the presence of these major rivers, Telangana experiences mostly dry and semi-arid climate.

2. Write about the Soils of Telangana.

Ans. The soils of Telangana are mainly red, black and lateritic. Most of the part in Telangana state is covered by Red soils which is about 48%. These soils formed due to weathering of ancient metamorphic rocks. Red color is due to presence of iron oxides. Red soils are mostly found in Mahabubnagar, Nalgonda, Karimnagar, Khammam, Ranga Reddy, Nizamabad districts and very less in Adilabad district. These soils are suitable for raising groundnut crop.

Black soils accounts for 25% of total area of Telangana. These are made up of volcanic rocks and lava flow. These are also called as regur soils. These soils are very much suitable for Cotton and dry crops. The black color is due to Ferrous(Fe) and Magnesium(Mg) oxides. Water holding capacity of these soils is high. We can find, most of the parts in Adilabad, Ranga Reddy, Nizamabad districts and less parts of Karimnagar, Warangal, Medak, and Mahabubnagar districts. Laterite soils Covers 170 of the area.

3. Write about the Forests in Telangana.

Ans. In Telangana, Thorny vegetation covers the scattered hills of the plateau areas, dense woodlands are found in the northeast along and near the Godavari natural vegetation of Telangana consists of dry deciduous and scrub forests mostly found in Adilabad, Karimnagar, Warangal and Khammam districts, while scrub forests are found in Nalgonda and northern parts of Mahbubnagar districts. Teak, rosewood, wild fruit trees, Beedi Leaves and bamboo are plentiful. The forests play a major role in supporting the livelihood activities of rural poor and other tribal communities. Further, they are also useful to mitigate the threat of global warming, and help in conserving the fertile soil and vulnerable wildlife. .

The total forest area covered in the Telangana state is 26,969.48 sq. km. which is equal to 24 per cent of the total geographical area.

The State is implementing 'Telangana Ku Haritha Haram' (TKHH), a flagship programme which envisages to increase the tree cover of the State from present 24% to 33% of the total geographical area of the State.

The Age of Satavahanas

SHORT ANSWER QUESTIONS (5 MARKS)

1. Write an essay on Administration of Satavahanas.

Ans. In this chapter a brief survey of the political, social and economic conditions prevailed during pre - Satavahana and Satavahana periods in Andhra Desa will be made. During the Nanda and Mauryan period that preceded the Satavahana rule, applied a single unified administrative system and provided congenial atmosphere for a systematic social structure in the region.

Administration :

1. The Satavahana kings enjoyed supreme authority in administration. Their polity was simple and was carried on the lines of the Mauryan administration. Succession to the throne was hereditary. An important practice of the Satavahana kings was to undertake royal tours and keep in touch with the public opinion and to improve the efficiency in administration. The king was assisted by the Rajamatyas who constituted the advisory body of the king. The Mahamatra (in charge of religious affairs), Bhandagarika (superintendent of stores), Mahasenapati (commander of forces), Nibandhakara (in-charge of drafting state records) and Lekhaka (officer in-charge of registering documents) were some of the officials who assisted the king in the smooth functioning of the government.
2. The Satavahana kingdom was divided into rashtras and aharas. The rashtras were governed by the princes of royal blood or officers called amatyas and other subordinate chieftains like the Maharathis and Mahabhojas.
3. They enjoyed extensive powers. Their posts were hereditary. They made grants of lands and villages without the consent of the king. The Rashtras were subdivided into Aharas. They were kept under the control of Amatyas. They were not allowed to make grants of lands and villages without the permission of the king. The village was the smallest and basic administrative unit. It was under the control of gramani. It appears that there was considerable autonomy in managing the affairs of the villages and towns.

4. A part from the central and provincial administration, epigraphical evidence reveals the existence of several towns like, Sopara, Broach, Kanheri, Paithan, Kotilingala, in the Satavahana kingdom. These cities were administered by nigama sabha - an assembly of citizens. This was the forum through which the citizens of the town acted and voiced their grievance and feelings.
5. Although the Satavahanas followed patriarchy, some of the later Satavahana king's names bore the traces of matriarchal lineage. But these metronymic titles had nothing to do with any practice of tracing descent through the matriarchal line. The Satavahanas king, like the Mauryan emperors under took tours. These tours enabled the kings to know the problems of the people.

2. Discuss the socio-economic conditions of the Satavahanas.

Ans. The prosperity of the Satavahana kingdom depended upon agriculture, industry and trade. The rich arid aristocrats made grants of lands, cows and sometimes the entire agricultural land in a village to Brahmins and other needy people. The king had his own private landed property called rajakheta. Gutmaka was the term used for the land in the outlying provinces held by the subordinate chiefs. The landlords looked to the needs of agriculture.

1. The Nasik inscription refers to odayantrakas which may refer to a guild of wage workers or water machines. These were used to draw water from wells and tanks. Sometimes, buffaloes and donkeys were also used for drawing ploughs. The state collected 1/6 of the land's income as revenue. This was in accordance with the recommendations of the ancient law-givers.
2. Industry and commerce occupied a place of importance in the state's economy. The contemporary records at Nasik and Junnar mentioned many types of traders and industrial workers. To quote few are the Kularikas or potters, Odayantrikas or makers of hydraulic engines, Tilapisakas or oil pressers, Dhannikas or corn dealers, Kolikas or weavers and Vasakaras or bamboo workers.
3. Agriculture and industry stimulated the growth of internal and external trade. Ptolemy's Guide to Geography, local inscriptions and coins discovered in the Indian Peninsula throw considerable light on the commercial activities during the Satavahana period. These sources show that the eastern and western parts of the Satavahana kingdom were in a prosperous state.
4. Hala's Gathasapiasati and the sculptures of Amaravati provide a glimpse of the social life of the Satavahana period. The social set up of the Satavahana age was of a mixed pattern. The basis of social divisions was economic as well as hereditary castes. Thus the society was divided into four castes. However, on the basis of professions, it was divided into four sections. In the first section were the officers of the central, provincial and districts like Mahasenapati, Mahabhoja-Maharathikas and so on. The second class included Amatyas, Mahapatras and Sresthin (businessmen).

5. The unit of the society was the family. The joint family system was the normal feature of the society of that period. In the family, the male members had prece dence over the female members. The eldest male member of the family was called Grahapati. Thus, the society under Satavahanas was a reflection of the Alyan patriarchal system.
6. Women occupied an honoured place in the society. This is clear from the fact that Satavahana rules used metonymics, i.e. the names of their mothers along with their names like Gautamiputra, Vasisthiputra etc. Women also participated in the administration. The widow of Gautamiputra Satakarni looked after the adminis tration of the state as the guardian of her sons Naganika.

3. Write achievements of Gautamiputra Satakarni.

Ans. The next illustrious king of the family was Gautamiputra Satakarni. He was the twentythird ruler who ascended the throne in 62 CE. The Nasik and Karle grants men tion that he regained the lost territories of Maharashtra region from the successors of Nahapana. The Nasik inscription issued by his mother Gautamibalasri, gives a long eulogy about the achievements of Gautamiputra Satakarni. This inscription speaks Gautamiputra as ‘king of kings’ and ruler of Assika, Asmaka, Mulaka, Surashtra, Kukura, Aparanta, Anupa, Vidarbha, Akara and Avanti. It also styled her son Gautamiputra Satakarni as “Kshaharata vamsa niravasesaka” (Nirmulaka) (Destroyer of the Kshaharata family). He was also referred to as the protector of varnasramadhrama and considered as an abode of learning.

For all his acts he was given the epithets Satavahanakula-Yasa-Puthapanakara, Ekabrahmana, Agama Nitaya, Kshatriya Darpamana and Trisamudratoyapithavahana, etc. He was described as having performed Asvamedha and Rajasuya sacrifices.

4. Discuss the religious conditions during the Sataavahana period.

Ans. The rise of Satavahana coincided with the progress of Brahmanism, Buddhism and Jainism into the Deccan. Each of these religious sects compromised with focal cults and also contended with each other to gain popularity.

The inscriptions of Satavahana kings refer to them as the followers of brahmanical religion. This is known to us from the performance of various vedic sacrifices and pleasing Brahmins by rich gifts, including villages, cattle, gold vessels, and thousands of karsapanas (Nanaghat Inscription). Brahmanism itself was undergoing change incorporating the local cults. The new system of religion is characterized by belief in purusharthas caste system, good acts like vraata, dana and tirtha and devotion to personal god. Gautamiputra Satakarni followed these aspects of neo-Brahmanism. Jainism could not make headway in Telangana during this time.

5. Enumerate the salient features of Satavahana Art and Architecture.

Ans. The Satavahanas opened a new chapter in the history of Deccan architecture. The monuments raised under the patronage of the Satavahanas are distributed throughout the length and breadth of Western Deccan and Telangana. They are found at Phanigiri (Nalgonda), Nelakondapalli (Khammam) Kotilingala (Karimnagar), Dhulikatta, Peddabankur, Kadambapur, Kondapur (Medak), Nagarjuna Konda etc. The monuments of the Satavahana period are primarily Buddhist monuments, They are the stupas, viharas and chaityas.

The stupas are dome like structures erected by the Buddhist over the mortal remains of the Buddha or some other great teacher. The chaitya or chaityalaya was the Buddhist temple and had a stupa as the object of worship. It is also a place of meditation for the Buddhist monks. Vihara is a place where the Buddhist monks and nuns used to live.

ESSAY ANSWER QUESTIONS (10 MARKS)

1. Discuss the important of mass protests in the Late Telangana Movement.

Ans. Ever since the formation of Andhra Pradesh state, several struggles and movements for separate Telangana took place directly or indirectly. Especially the protests that emerged out of 1969 movement turned the entire Telangana into a military camp. Though started as students protest, the struggle for Telangana slowly engulfed the nine districts of Telangana leading all students, educated persons and employees to the path of the movement.

1. The Naxalite Movement first started in West Bengal. In Andhra Pradesh, the Naxal movement had begun in late 1960s in the north-eastern parts of the state especially in Srikakulam and Vijayanagaram districts and then spread over to rest of the state through Godavari Valley forest region to Nallamalla forest region. In Telangana, many activities had been undertaken by Naxalite leaders. After the failure of 1969 separate Telangana State Movement, disappointed Telangana youth and students had chosen the path of Naxalism.
2. Telangana youth were dejected as people from Andhra were appointed in jobs violating Mulki Rules. Employees and Students called for strike. Schools and Colleges were closed down. Telangana NGO's also joined the movement. Government resorted to impose PD act and other repressive measures. In this context noting the gravity of situation, Central Government propounded Eight Point Formula to solve the Telangana problems and announced the same in the Parliament, Eight Point Formula could not give any solution to Mulki Rule issue. For these reasons, the movement got intensified.
3. The major reason for the discontentment among Telangana youth was that injustice was done to Telangana in allocation of funds or employment though it constituted 40 percent in terms of population and geographical area. In education sector too it was discriminated. It was the main reason for the inequalities between the two regions.
4. In the year 1972, On February 14th the Five Judge full bench of Andhra Pradesh High Court gave a verdict that Mulki rules are not constitutional. The Mulki Rules for local reservations were implemented before Indian independence in the Nizam State. At the time of the formation of the united AP state assurance was given that Mulki Rules would be continued but afterwards they were not implemented.

5. To subside the discontentment of Telangana people, in a public meeting held at Ajam Jahi Mills grounds at Warangal on 17th February 1972, the then Prime Minister Indira Gandhi declared that any injustice to Telangana shall not be allowed. As per Indira Gandhi directions PV Narasimha Rao Government moved Supreme Court challenging the verdict of High court.
6. Meanwhile P.V. Narasimha Rao took some key constructive decisions on the Central Government Land Reforms Act. Accordingly, Andhra Pradesh Government issued all land dealings as per the ordinance on May 2, 1972. In the same year on 15 September state legislature passed Land Ceiling Act. All these measures antagonized the land lords who distanced themselves from PV Narasimha Rao. During this time only Supreme Court gave a historical verdict on 3rd October 1972 stating Mulki rules are constitutional and upheld the rules.

Ans. The rulers are consistently making efforts through different policies, facts and GO's to subsume the demand of separatism. In 1983, the then Chief Minister N.T. Rama appointed three-member committee to examine the Telangana peoples demand of allocating jobs in Telangana region to the unemployed Telangana youth. This committee recommended that there were about 60,000 Andhra people appointed against the posts allocated to Telangana people. They should be immediately vacated and appoint Telangana people. Keeping in view of the recommendations, NTR issued GO No: 610 in December 1985 and stated but it will be put into effect from 31st March 1986. He also promised that the removed people will be sent back to Andhra by creating super-numery posts. However, till the end of his tenure in 1989, this was not implemented. The successive Governments of congress and Chandrababu Naidu also did not bother to implement it. Owing to the later pressure phase of the Telangana movement and the demand of the Telangana leaders to implement GO No; 610, Chandrababu Naidu Government constituted single man committee of Girglani. Later one more committee was constituted under Prakash Reddy. The committee in its mid-term report stated that there were very few Andhra People working currently in Telangana posts. With this report again the demand for separate state issue came in forefront.
